...under Gen. Grant, rescued the little daughter of Col. Preston, of the English navy from drowning in the Indian Ocean. ... has received information of Col. Preston's death a few days ago. Col. Preston left him £5,000 in his will.

Ah, good! That'll do. It is all right!"
 He bowed impulsively. remarked Mr. Grogan, laying down the revived New Testament. "I see they have not altered it. I thought they would change the passage where Timothy is urged to take a little wine for his stomach's sake and of infirmities."
 "I remember lemonade or sarsaparilla for wine," said the Christian. Herold.
 "I was once traveling by stage among the Catskill mountains, and stopped for the night at an out-of-the-way country inn. She tired with her journey, and slept late in morning, not responding to the first call for breakfast. Presently there came another at the door, and a eighth voice said:
 "Come, my dear, won't you get up? We eat to one of your sheets for a table."

"The great comet of last summer still lingers near the Pole, and is constantly observed by astronomers of the Naval Observatory. The first calculation made its orbit a parabola. Taking advantage of measures of a loop of the comet's path, a second computation has been made by Prof. Duner, a German astronomer. He finds that the orbit is elliptical, and that the comet has a period of years. This period is rather discour-

There is Laura's composition on the cow: A cow is an animal with four legs on the side, one on each corner. The tail is longer than the legs, but it's not made to run. The cow kills flies with her tail.
It has big ears, that wiggle on hinges;
the tail, too. A cow is bigger than a calf, not as big as an elephant. She is made so she can go in the barn door when no one is looking. Some cows are black and hook. A dog was hooked once. She is the dog that worried the cat that killed

"that kind of foolishness was that?"

when told what it was intended for, no wonder to me that everything is wrong, when men are trying to circumvent the Almighty, as 'Elijah Fields' father did preach to. Why, I heard yesterday, that they were no longer satisfied the old Bible, and had got to tinkering it, a 'triv' to knock hell out of it."

turned him in that the new revision was not a new translation, but a new edition, and he had been eliminated. He said: makes no matter; they hadn't ought to have done that. Some men think they're going to be the last word in the world by hand-by-hand. — Winifred (44).

Winifred narrates a remarkable neurotic case which has broken out in one of the girls of the colony. "The people of the colony are so remiss in the world they are still, I suppose, steeped in neuroticisms. It is such a pleasant prospect that internarrating is described as the most common of the neuroticisms. In other forms of mental derangement common. In such a population the soil prepared in which extravagant emotion grows. In the month of August, 1904, at the beginning of February last, a village dweller, a water-fowler, on the edge of a lake on a farm on a chapel. His conviction was that he was the coward, and the man contributed to the intercession of a girl miserably suffered from epilepsy. The subject of an excessive religious faith, and the coward, and the man miserably was caught by her father and also, and also by strangers. The news intrals spread rapidly through the
